

Devon Nicole House Project Completed

The Devon Nicole House, on Autumn Street, Boston, MA a few blocks from Children's Hospital offers an affordable place for families to stay while their children are being given medical care. ASID, as a community service project, took on the challenge of beautifying the interiors of 13 bedrooms, a kitchen, a living room, an office and several corridors and bathrooms. Fifteen ASID designers offered their services and enlisted the aid of suppliers they work with in order to complete the job which turned out to be greater than anyone's expectations.

An Open House for the viewing of the newly designed spaces at the Devon Nicole House, was hosted by Children's Hospital on December 12, 2005. The ASID designers, who were in charge of the renovations, were in the rooms that they had designed greeting the guests. Supporters and staff members of Children's as well as donors, friends and family members of all those involved in the renovation were invited to see the striking transformation that had taken place. Those who were familiar with the facility and its very serviceable but plain and unadorned rooms were amazed to see how attractive, warm and welcoming they had become.
